DETAILED ACTION

The Board decision of 12/4/09 reversed the previously applied rejections. However, based on an updated search of the prior art, it has been determined that a double patenting rejection is required, as set forth below.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1, 2, 8, 9, 22-24, and 27-29 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-19 of U.S. Patent No. 7,243,004 B2. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the patented claims teach an HVAC system comprising a thermostat having a central control (see for example claims 3 and 8), a data bus linking the central controller to an indoor unit controller and an outdoor unit controller (see for example claim 13), and the indoor unit performing a heating function, the indoor unit being one of a furnace and fan/heater/unit (see for example claim 6), and the outdoor unit being one of an air conditioner and a heat pump (see for example claim 6). As per claims 1 and 22, the patented claims do not specifically recite the thermostat comprising input switches or the indoor unit receiving control signals on the data bus from the central controller. Official notice is first taken that input switches are common and typical components of thermostats and would have been obvious to combine with the system of the patented claims for the purpose allowing a user to program desired operating conditions. Regarding the indoor unit receiving control signals on the data bus from the central controller, it is noted that the patented claims teach the central controller receiving signals from the indoor and outdoor units via the data bus and also selecting algorithms to control the indoor and outdoor units. Official notice is taken that it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have used the data bus to communicate the control signals from the central controller to the indoor and outdoor units for the purpose of taking advantage of the fact that the data bus is already in place. As per claim 8, official notice is taken that it is common and typical for controllers to include microprocessors. As per claim 9, official notice is taken that it is common and well known for control signals to have routing identifiers.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3-9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 10-21, 25, and 26 are allowed.
